A new Federation.

It is not long, since the Duke of Connaught left Portsmouth. England, as the King's Representative, on a grand and glorious mission, to set the seal, open the union of the four States by opening the first united Parliament in the great continent of Africa. We cannot help saying, that this journey of His Royal Highness marks a new period in the history of the Empire. Indeed, the attempt is an epochemaking. Nothing could have a more beneficial and lasting effect, than the coming together, or grouping into a united whole and solid body than the Colonies of the British Empire.

Canada accomplished her language and the story we cannot unfor the graders is ound.

into a united whole and solid body than the Colonies of the British Empire.

Canada accomplished her union in 1867; Australia followed in 1900, and now in 1910. South Africa has attained the same goal. British methods are the same the world over, more or less. What a glorious country Canada is, and how wonderful has the peace been maintained, when we consider the varying the degrees of thought, and how mixed the population is, yet her federation was consumated through the loyalty which was placed in the French Settlers that won their affection.

It was the same treatment which the Dutch people of South Africa received which helped forward the movement. We desire to see the same attempt being made in regards to the West India Islands. There is strength and power it is necessary that all her Colonies in whatever part of the globe they are should be federated; that the loyalty personal though it might be to the Great Empire might become the bond of union between the scattered people of the Empire.

Damages on Old Line.

News came to hand that there is yet further damage being done to the Railway on the Old Line. The embankment of the bridges have been washed away, and the tressel work of the bridge at Fish-Creek is also damaged, caused by the heavy rains. The passengers walked to Siquirres. They must have endured great discomfort, but these must be endured, as much greater power is at work.

President.

Marshall Fonseca was recently nearly fire and the graphic of Brazil. Great interest centres around the new President, from the fact that white ne was being feted in Portugal, the revolution broke out. The ceremony was most imposing. The returning President received a great ovation. Eye battle-ships representing their representative governments attended the ceremony. Brazil has 2,000 miles of railway, and 9,000 have been contracted for: She has added two "Dreadnoughts" to her fleet.
