Journalism in Limon

To the Editor of the Times.

Dear Sir.—I have before me. "The Nation" of the 4th of April—Unhappy "The Nation" with auch a.—for its Editor.

The Immortal Byron in, his "English Barls, and Social Reviewers" has made the name of an obnoxious character called Fitzerald famous—by lashing himsonnily with that migatier weapon than the sword. He asked, how mireh longer then ears were to be polluted with this (Ettzerald's) filthy couplets—scream of forth in every tavera.

Mr. Editor in sober prose, I the undersigned am now enquiring—How mich longer mirst the ears of a respectable community be offended by the scarrellities of a ville ponya-liner, calling himself a journalist—forsonth.

Is filthy abuse argument, or obnoxious personalties journalism the writer of the thing—called by courtesy, an editorial—would be ostracized in a place, where English morals and gentlemanly deportment, under the most trying circumstances, marks the man of crudition.

Who made this man the "Champion of Caristendon!" Echoanswers who?

Methinks the one claiming, or

Who made this man the 'Champion of Cariatendom' Echo answers who?

Methinks the one claiming, or assuming this honour, on ght to be "sime peur et sans reproche a Sir Galahad among men.

Was it with a crow's quill that Garvey did'st write the fifthy Jumble, he calls an editorial? Verily it were enough to make this bird of ebox dye blush through his sable plumage, at the base use made of his feather. Neither could it have been the honset goose quill—batter far be an homest goose than a braying ass.

it seems strange, and reminds one of the various gliases assumed by the rogues of Delective stories. That one of his vast ability, and varied talents should have condescended to "if" from the "land of his birth"—various successes, to vegetate among us poor ignorant, imlettered creatures, looks well, peculiar. It is said that it takes three generations to make a gentleman, hence every excuse must be made for this aspirer after notoriety we may therefore wink at the obscenity of his language in a public newspaper, the fall has affected him along that line, therefore he mistakes ocscenity for wit,

What can ennoble, sots, or slaves, or cowards,
Alas! not all the blood of all the Howards."

We worder why the writer of "Reboufs and Rebounds" does not turn his attentien to Murray's Grammar, it would be far more profitable than writing the absurd trash, with which he is filling The Nation, all except the borrowed thoughts on Progress, etc.

What a blessing that the proprietor of this long-suffering periods of this long-suffering periods.

What a blessing that the pro-prietor of this long-suffering pe-riodical does not understand En-glish thoroughly.

Who would not rather earn the most beggarly salary, than ac-paire by frand, a million-the latter is such a risky business, subject to such awful in conve-niences, such as arrests, etc.

FIRST AND SECOND MATCH DRAWN.

Mr. Somerset and his M. C. C. combination arrived in Jamaica on 24th March and commenced to do battle with All Jamaica the next day. The skipper of the Jamaica team, Captain Nicholson, won the toss and elected to send in his m m, and at the close of the innings they compiled the respectable score of 253 runs. The Englishmen replied with 31 thus gaining an advantage of 53 runs. Jamaica in their last attempt did better than their first by compiling a score of 310 runs. The English team had the task of knocking up 255 to win and

The Figlish team had the task of knocking up 255 to win and started to achieve it but when the score reached 51 runs and 2 wickets down, a down pour of rain came lasting fully an hour; it held up at 5 pm, half hour before, time to cease play. The pitch was in an unplayable condition, consequently the umpires had to declare the game a draw.

THE CALTAIN'S OPINION

In a short interview which the visiting skipper grantel a True-graph and Guardian reporter at the close of play, Mr. A. F. Somerset said:

"Jamaica's batting has improved considerably since I was here last, and F. A. Foster gave a genuine first-class display to-day. Duncker also batted well for his runs.

"To tell you the honest truth (this in answer to a direct question on the point), I do not think Jamaica is yet in a class either with Trinidad or Barbados. The former has far stronger bowling, and the latter much better batting. But you are certainly quite as good as, if not superior to Demerara.

Current News.

Only six sacks of mails landed from the "Prinz Joachim" yes-terday; this is said to be the smallest amount ever brought by this line of steamers.
